This seminar strengthens the investigative capabilities of police, fire personnel, detectives, and agencies with or without dedicated crime scene support. Participants learn proven safety protocols, scene security, and systematic processing while gaining hands-on skill in locating, identifying, and collecting fingerprints, DNA, biological, impression, and trace evidence. Training reinforces chain-of-custody, accurate scene documentation, and key legal considerations to protect admissibility. Realistic practical exercises allow attendees to apply methods, justify decisions, and demonstrate professional-level rigor expected in modern investigations.

TOPICS INCLUDE:

- Safety protocols and scene-security
- Systemic & methodical processing
- Latent fingerprint, DNA, & biological evidence: location, identification, and collection
- Recovery of impression and tool mark evidence
- Trace evidence and relevant techniques for location, identification, and collections
- Chain-of-custody, the importance, and the impact
- Crimes scene sketches and diagrams: reflect scale, legend, and positional relationships
- Legal considerations governing evidence collection, search-warrant requirements, and admissibility in court.
- Process staged crime scene practical exercises, present findings using methodology, documentation, and evidence rationale.
- Documentation instructions for the above topics!
